Sample report:

"Kidder Brook / Cricenti Bog New London, NH

Hike on July 3, 2021

Leader: Duncan Love

5 of us did a hike at Kidder Brook Trail and a walk about on a boardwalk viewing Cricenti Bog in New London, NH near Little Lake Sunapee. I can't remember the last time I led an official GMC hike. It is great to be back in the swing of things. All of us have endured different and major changes to our lifestyle from the "you know".

To experience Kidder Brook is a special event. An idyllic brook with various water features including pretty waterfalls. The biggest one is pictured here. So green with a thick canopy above and an interesting old dam site. Need I say more? You have to go there. Almost forgot to mention it's personal. My family vacation was in this area from 1950 to 1976 (I wasn't around for the first 9 years).

Then the bog. Very unique flora. Pitcher Plants and bonsai like trees including black spruce. Each month features different wildflowers. We got to see cotton grass, Sheep laurel, White Fringed Orchid, and much more. Google it and as I said about the brook go there!

That's it and as I often say about the unique hikes I lead. Where were you?

I think this might have been the first GMC hike for the two at both ends of this picture. Not uncommon for my hikes.

Of course our esteemed UVO section president Dick Andrews is in the middle of this picture at the bog. He seems to co-lead or be present at most every hike I lead!
